* Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

Egypt's heritage is one of the richest in the world. From the ancient pyramids of Giza to the temples of Luxor and Aswan, every stone tells a story of greatness and wisdom. These monuments remind us of the creativity and hard work of the ancient Egyptians who built them thousands of years ago without modern tools.

But Egypt's heritage is not only about ancient history. It also lives in its music, art, traditions, and the warm hospitality of its people. Every festival, meal, and song carries a part of the Egyptian soul that has survived through centuries.

Today, protecting this great heritage is a shared responsibility. When people learn about their past, they become proud of their identity and eager to build a stronger future. Egypt's heritage is not just in museums — it is alive in the hearts of its people.
